Information about air filter support upgrade

Some of you have noticed that it exists 2 types of air filter support designs. The most recent type has been made to ease the fitting of the air filter and prevent it from cracking.

This upgrade includes a reduction of the outside diameter of the air filter mounting area, inducing a slight restriction of the inner diameter. Both air filter supports are identified below:

Old air filter support

New air filter support

We would like to confirm you that prior to upgrade this part in our stock, engine dyno bench comparisons between these two parts through several engines have been processed. Also, Renault Sport certifies that this modification does not have any impact on the engine performance and any of these air filter supports does not bring any advantage compared to the other.

Consequently, both air filter supports known under the same part reference (ref: 77 11 166 349) are of course allowed on the car.

However, the new air filter support has definitely replaced the old and genuine one, and is now the only part available to the Alpine spare parts department under the reference 77 11 166 349.
